Docker, by creating just a container for the process and not booting up an OS, brings it down to seconds. This is the enabling technology that has brought Google and Facebook to using containers. Essentially, you can create and destroy resources in your data center without worrying about the cost of bringing it up again.

I used the dumb thing by drilling new holes in the rim and using anchors to set the screws, glued the insert into the wall unit and clamped the dryer hose. It would have been much better to simply use the extended portion on the vent tube but I had already cut it to the proper length. I do not recommend this Easy Dock.
