Death A Life George Pendle

George Pendle knows there is more to Death than a hood and scythe. The offspring of Satan and Sin, Death, is tired of being misunderstood, and he sits to set the record straight. Since the beginning of Creation -- a time when plants and animals roamed the earth wearing plastic name tags to identify themselves -- Death has been with us.

Death was born in Hell, the only son of Satan and Sin. He was educated in the Palace of Pandemonium and the Garden of Eden. Since before the Dawn of Time, he has ushered souls into the darkness of eternity. This is his first book. George Pendle is the author of Strange Angel and The Remarkable Millard Fillmore.

Death: A Life by George Pendle, Paperback | Barnes & Noble®

Death: A Life by George Pendle is a satirical novel pretending to be a memoir written by Death chronicling his life and work. Really though, it's a parody of religion and creationism. Initially, I picked up Death: A Life because the concept of a memoir written by Death struck me as hilarious, but I wasn't expecting it to be as well written and entertaining as it was.
