"Sacramentum Mundi" is an international theological encyclopedia which is being published simultaneously in six languages (English, Dutch, French, German, Italian and Spanish). It is an attempt to formulate present-day developments of the understanding of the faith, basing itself on modern theological investigations of the key themes of the theological disciplines, in the hope that they will thus be fruitful for personal reflection in faith and in practice.

Meanwhile Rahner had undertaken additional editorial responsibilities for the four volumes of Sacramentum Mundi (1967 - 1969) and for Concilium (1965 -). During the first years of Rahner's retirement in Munich, his major project was the preparation of his Grundkurs des Glaubens (1976), an introduction to the idea of Christianity. While not intended as a complete systematic theology, the book does present many of his basic positions on the central topics of Christian doctrine and has ...
