Art Nouveau, ornamental style of art that flourished between about 1890 and 1910 throughout Europe and the United States. Art Nouveau is characterized by its use of a long, sinuous, organic line and was employed most often in architecture, interior design, jewelry and glass design, posters, and illustration. It was a deliberate attempt to create a new style, free of the imitative historicism.

In Hungarian, the Art Nouveau style (French for "new art") is known as "Secession". It was a popular architectural style which swept Europe between 1890 and 1910, and was hugely influential in Hungary. One of its most famous exponents in Budapest was Ödön Lechner, who designed the Museum of Applied Arts building, the Geological Museum and the Postal Savings Bank, to name just a few.
