The primary feature of the APA style is to include what is known as a running head. This part is a type of header at the top of each paper. It will include an abbreviated title of the work as well as the page number. On the title page of an APA paper, you will prefix this heading with the words Running head for identification. The title page will include your paper's full title in the absolute center and followed by your name and institution, also centered.

Key points to note on APA format. You should cite the text and also provide a list of the various references at the end of your work. The APA citation format requires that when citing the text, you must provide the name or the names of the authors and the year in which the material was published. Providing in-text citations in APA style show that you acknowledge that ideas expressed are not originally yours. If you have paraphrased the given text, you need not to provide a page number.
