You need a mission statement. Your mission is always in service to your purpose, but they are different. You're going to accomplish it. Your mission is about what's now. In the next few years. If you're always shooting for your mission, then your vision is what that looks like in this season of ministry.

Your Church Needs a Mission and a Vision Statement

Vision is necessary for healthy church growth, but an over-reliance on the vision can ironically keep the church from growing. If everything is about the vision, you'll wind up with a church committed to a version of some vision, not to a life of faith and following Jesus.

Developing a Mission or Vision With Your Team - Church Fuel

The mission answers the question of why the organization exists, the vision points to where it is headed and the values are the guiding principles for prioritization, behaviors and decision making. I am always excited when I speak to an organization that has gotten the revelation that a mission and vision statement serves as a guide to influence direction, strategy and decision making.
