Question: My RV is plugged in to shoreline power but I have no electricity inside of coach, or to the fridge or microwave. What can I do to fix this? Answer: I am assuming that you have already attempted to reset the main circuit breakers at the power pedestal and the main 110 volt circuit breaker(s) in the RV. Start by checking these two things first, as they are the easiest way to find and ...

Best advice is to buy an additional 30 amp RV cord-- heavier gauge= less voltage drop. You should be able to manage to keep the batteries plugged in 24/7 along with a few other things on 20 amp service. BUT PLEASE MONITOR VOLTAGE (at any outlet in the coach). If voltage drops below 108 VAC, you need to shed some load.

Your insured property is a "total loss" if it's damaged beyond repair — or at least the point where repairs don't make financial sense. Suppose your car gets totaled when it's 15 years old. Cutting you a total-loss check for the value of the car is probably cheaper for the insurer than paying for repairs. If you don't like the adjuster's offer on a total loss, you may be able to negotiate a ...
