School Based Multisystemic Interventions For Mass Trauma ...

The school-based, 7-level preventive intervention model too looks marvellous, until one probes for the practical detail that would allow anyone to apply it. If a mental health service, including the school, really studies the model and considers how to adapt it for their own particular circumstances (in advance of any incident, of course) then it should meet the challenge far better than otherwise.

Multisystemic Therapy | EPIS

In 2006, the Boston Public Schools asked AIP to launch a Multisystemic Therapy Program for students with delinquent and unmanageable behavior from ten public schools in the Dorchester/Roxbury and Jamaica Plain neighborhoods of Boston. AIP's MST team was developed to be the most treatment-intensive component of the school district's multi-pronged Safe Schools/Healthy Students federal grant initiative, a continuum of supports and services to reduce the high rates of disengagement, anti ...
