Three Short Stories Of Sherlock

I found each of the three short stories in this book inappropriate to use in the classroom with elementary or middle school children. The first short story ends with obvious gender bias, the second story has racial bias, and the third story is violent when Sherlock tells Watson to put his gun to the suspects head.

"The Adventure of the Three Garridebs", one of the 56 Sherlock Holmes short stories written by British author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is one of 12 stories in the cycle collected as The Case-Book of Sherlock Holmes. According to Dr. Watson's opening narration, this story is set at "the latter end of June, 1902... the same month that Holmes refused a knighthood for services which may perhaps some day be described." This is a parallel to the knighthood of Arthur Conan Doyle around the same time.

The Adventure of the Three Garridebs - Wikipedia

SHORT STORIES Sherlock Holmes is the greatest detective of them all. He sits in his room, and smokes his pipe. He listens, and watches, and thinks. He listens to the steps coming up his stairs; he watches the door opening — and he knows what question the stranger will ask. In these three of his best stories, Holmes has three visitors to the
