World Made By Hand James

In fact, World Made by Hand is as much utopia as dystopia. Union Grove, NY is a small community struggling to survive in the aftermath of an economic collapse which catalyzed a government collapse, which made everyone vulnerable to flu and encephalitis that dramatically reduced the population.

World Made by Hand: A Novel: Kunstler, James Howard ...

World Made By Hand is not a thriller, though there is some action and violence. It occupies some strange middle ground between The Stand and Earth Abides . James Howard Kunstler is more interested in telling a story about what people do when the lights go out and how they go back to churning their own butter and making their own candles than a broader story about the collapse of civilization.

World Made by Hand by James Howard Kunstler

World Made by Hand is a dystopian novel by American author James Howard Kunstler, published in 2008. Set in the fictional town of Union Grove, New York, the novel follows a cast of characters as they navigate a world stripped of its modern comforts, ravaged by terrorism, epidemics, and the economic upheaval of peak oil, all of which are exacerbated by global warming.

World Made by Hand | Kunstler

Unlike the bleakness of style and subject in Cormac McCarthy's The Road, James Howard Kunstler's World Made by Hand is an end-of-days novel that is more a pleasure than a burden to read; it frightens without becoming ridiculously nightmarish, it cautions without being too judgmental, and it offers glimmers of hope we don't have to read between the lines to comprehend." —Zak M. Salih, Baltimore City Paper

World Made by Hand is, for him, a natural fictional extension and development of the themes found in TLE. The end of oil and the fight for the dregs creates chaos, devastates cities, brings down corporate and government structures until we are thrown back to times without "normal" mobility, communications, electricity, governance or law.
